

IRONIC TRAGEDY. In an attempt to save American lives by dropping pamphlets advertising a war bond campaign, 3 local lives were lost when an airplane crashed in the middle of Walnut St., between 2nd and 3rd, in 1943. Killed were Addie Wendling, Edward Early, and Early's son, Edward, age 12, all of whom were in the plane. Although the downtown area was crowded with Saturday afternoon shoppers, no pedestrians nor motorists were injured.
